2     D/B/A VANGUARD CLEANING SYS.     )
3     )     )
4     FIRM NO. 077,765-00     )     DECISION AND ORDER
5

6             Hardy and Associates DBA Vanguard Cleaning Systems of Washington (Hardy) operates a
7 business that franchises a cleaning system to LLCs in the State of Washington. Some of the LLCs
8 hired employees to perform all or part of the janitorial work for which they contract, and some owners
9 of the LLCs did not, instead performing the janitorial work themselves. Hardy did not pay industrial 10 insurance premiums for any of the owners of the LLCs, regardless of whether they hired anyone to 11 help them perform the janitorial work. The Department of Labor and Industries determined that the 12 LLCs who did not hire employees were workers under the Industrial Insurance Act and required Hardy
13 to pay workers compensation premiums for them. Hardy argues that none of the owners of the LLCs
14 are "workers" as the term is defined in the Industrial Insurance Act and therefore all of the owners
15 are exempt from coverage. Our industrial appeals judge determined that the owners are workers
16 under the Act, but because 22 of the owners testified to hiring subordinates, they became exempt
17 from coverage under White v. Department of Labor & Industries.<sup>1</sup> While we agree with our industrial 18 appeals judge that the owners of LLCs may be considered workers under the Act, we also find that 19 not all of the 22 owners who testified provided sufficient evidence to show that they hired subordinates
20 as contemplated by White. A preponderance of the evidence supports that 3 of the 22 of the testifying 21 owners hired employees and became exempt from coverage under White. The Department order is 22 REVERSED and REMANDED to the Department to remove three LLCs and recalculate the unpaid
23 taxes, interest, and penalties based on the remaining LLCs.
24

DISCUSSION

25             Vanguard Cleaning Systems is a national trademark brand specializing in commercial janitorial
26 services. Hardy and Associates is a franchisee of Vanguard. However, Hardy does not itself perform 27 any janitorial services. Instead, Hardy sublicenses the trademarked Vanguard Cleaning System to 28 smaller LLCs. Hardy does not enter into franchise contracts with individuals. Under the franchise
29 contract, Hardy is responsible for providing the LLCs with commercial janitorial accounts. Hardy also 30 makes optional training and support services available. The LLCs are responsible for performing the 31 janitorial services themselves. The contract with Hardy requires each LLC to employ at least one

1 employee to perform janitorial work. Hardy does not involve itself with the hiring or firing of employees
2 of the LLC and does not require documentation that the minimum employee requirement has been 3 satisfied. Hardy's revenue consists of the fees and royalties it collects from the commercial
4 customers before forwarding the remaining money to the appropriate LLC.
5

7 In 2016, the Department conducted an audit of Hardy after receiving a phone call from the 8 owner of an LLC inquiring about elective workers' compensation coverage. The audit initially 9 determined that Hardy had 114 workers for whom it had not paid workers compensation premiums
10 for the year 2015 but that number was reduced to 107 after Hardy filed a protest. Hardy has appealed 11 the Department's determination that the remaining 107 franchisees are subject to coverage under 12 the Act.
13
14
15

16 This appeal is factually similar to Department of Labor and Industries v. Lyons Enterprises
17 Inc.<sup>2</sup> In Lyons, the employer was, like Hardy, a company that licensed a janitorial system to small
18 businesses in the State of Washington. Lyons, like Hardy, did not perform any janitorial services
19 itself and instead made money by licensing the name and trade secrets of Jan Pro, a nationwide
20 commercial janitorial service. The litigation in Lyons focused on whether the franchisees could be 21 considered employees under RCW 51.08.180 and, if so, whether they could be exempted from 22 coverage under RCW 51.08.195.
23
24
25
26

27 After finding that the Industrial Insurance Act applied to franchisees, the Lyons court looked to 28 RCW 51.08.180 to determine that independent contractors were included in the definition of a
29 "worker" so long as the essence of the contract was for his or her personal labor. Having found that 30 the essence of the franchise contracts in Lyons was for personal labor, the court then looked to see 31 if any of the three recognized exceptions outlined in White applied such that the businesses were 32 exempted from coverage. The court ultimately found that those franchisees who actually "employed 33 subordinates" were exempt from coverage and the case was remanded to the Board to determine 34 which franchisees employed subordinates. However, when Lyons was remanded to the Board to 35 answer that question, the Department and Lyons elected to resolve it by settlement and the question
36 remained unanswered.
37
38
39
40
41

42 In Lyons and White the terms "employ" and "hire" are used relatively interchangeably. But the 43 words do have subtle differences. "Employ" can mean to hire someone or to simply make use of 44
45
46

47 <sup>2</sup> 185 Wn.2d 721 (2016).

1 their services, whereas "hire" is defined specifically as employing someone for wages.<sup>3</sup> In Lyons the 2 supreme court found that "Lyons' franchisees who do not hire subordinates meet the IIA's definition
3 of "worker."<sup>4</sup> Shortly after the Lyons decision came out, the court of appeals further clarified the 4 distinction in Henry Industries, Inc. v. Department of Labor & Industries. The court pointed to the 5 testimony of an employee who said that he used others to handle his route when he was unavailable,
6 but that same driver also testified that he did not employ others.<sup>5</sup> The court went on to say that the 7 employer would have to show that the drivers delegated a "significant portion of their duties" to others
8 to meet the third test under White.
9

11
12
13 What it means to "employ others" is also defined in Peter M. Black Real Estate Co., Inc. v.
14 Department of Labor and Industries. Black Real Estate argued that because some of its listing agents 15 paid people to come in and fix up listings or shared commissions with other agents who showed the 16 listings, those listing agents were no longer workers because they had employed others. Division 17 Two disagreed. The court found "Nor are Black's agents employing others to perform their work when 18 they agree to assist each other and share the commission."<sup>6</sup>
19
20
21

22 The Proposed Decision and Order in this case found that if the owner of an LLC testified that 23 he or she used a helper at any point during 2015, this was sufficient to find that the owner had 24 employed a subordinate under White and therefore was exempt from coverage. In other words, any 25 owner of an LLC who had someone help them at any point in 2015 lost coverage under the Act as a 26 worker. We disagree with such a broad interpretation of Lyons and White.
27
28
29

30 We start with the proposition that the Industrial Insurance Act is to be liberally construed with 31 an express purpose of reducing the suffering and economic loss associated with industrial injuries.<sup>7</sup>
32 In order to achieve its stated purpose, the courts have found that the Industrial Insurance Act requires
33 all doubts to be resolved in favor of coverage.<sup>8</sup> In order to reconcile this presumption of coverage
34 with the exemptions articulated in Lyons, White, and Henry, we find that "hiring subordinates" has 35 greater formality and structure than simply asking a friend or family member to cover for the 36 franchisee or enlisting the aid of someone on an occasional basis that does not delegate a "significant 37 portion of the franchisee's duties." It is a bargained for exchange for remuneration, with the work

1 inducing the remuneration and the remuneration inducing the work. But the very fact that a franchisee
2 paid the helper does not necessarily remove that franchisee from coverage as the court held in Black.

3
4 Three of the franchisees have demonstrated that they have, in turn, become employers by 5 employing others. Chris Jones of Chris Cleaning LLC testified that he had hired many workers and 6 that he paid workers' compensation premiums for those workers. Il Chang of Jay Services, LLC
7 testified that he had hired workers and paid workers' compensation premiums for some of them.
8 Although, through the testimony it became clear that Mr. Chang did not do the paperwork for his LLC
9 and was unsure about the names of the people he employed or what premiums were paid on their 10 behalf, because his wife handled that part of the business. Still, his testimony convinces us that he 11 is an employer. Violeta Badon of Lasave LLC testified that she had hired workers and paid workers'
12 compensation premiums for those workers as well as providing them with 1099s for that pay.
13

15 The testimony of the remainder of the owners of LLCs during the period of the audit proved to 16 be insufficient to remove those owners from coverage. The testimony produced by the owners of the 17 various LLCs was oftentimes vague as to the details of the type of help they received and the 18 circumstances surrounding that help. While we are concerned about the lack of detail elicited from 19 many of the testifying LLC owners and the lack of documentation provided to support that testimony,
20 we specifically find that the owners who testified to only having family members or friends help them
21 on an occasional basis, without anything more, did not provide sufficient evidence to show that they 22 had employed a subordinate to help with all or part of the work as required by White.

25 We also note that it is concerning that of the 22 LLC owners that testified, there was testimony
26 that at least 15 of them were limited in English proficiency, with several needing interpreters for that 27 testimony. All of the contracts were in English and the testimony makes it quite clear that many of 28 the LLC owners did not understand all of the nuances of the contracts they were signing. It is 29 concerning that many of the LLC owners who came to testify had a vague understanding that the 30 issue under consideration was whether they had used helpers, but likely no understanding of how a 31 determination that they were employers would affect their LLC in the future.
32

33
34 Accordingly, we find the testimony of the following people to be insufficient to establish that 35 they were exempted from coverage during the period of 2015: Benjamin Parilla of BP&L LLC; Aaron
36 Kennedy of Aaron's Cleaning Service, LLC; Aurelio Barreto of Five Star General Cleaning Services;
37 Phalla Lean of Clean Bright Janitorial Service; Aracely Avelino of Avelino's Cleaning, LLC; Librado

2 of ARA Janitorial, LLC; Isabel Maldonado of Canas Cleaning Services, LLC; Maria Macedo of 3 Macedo Cleaning Services, LLC; Julio Tomas of JR Janitorial; Deyanira Villasenor of Dey's Cleaning;
4 Arthur Valdez of Valdez Cleaning; Maria Pineda Reyes of Mary's Cleaning, LLC; Petra Pineda Reyes
5 of Aby's Janitorial, LLC; Annabelle Encita of Annabelle's Cleaning, LLC; and Nessler Capati Deza of 6 Deza's Cleaning Service, LLC. This matter is remanded to the Department of Labor and Industries
7 to remove the remaining three LLCs from coverage as workers for Hardy and recalculate the unpaid
8 premiums, penalties, and interest accordingly.

9 DECISION

10 In Docket No. 17 19828, the firm, Hardy & Associates DBA Vanguard Cleaning Systems of 11 Washington filed an appeal with the Board of Industrial Insurance Appeals on August 23, 2017, from 12 an order of the Department of Labor and Industries dated July 26, 2017. In this order, the Department
13 assessed a total of $383,689.70 in unpaid taxes, interest, and penalties for the year 2015. This order
14 is incorrect and is reversed and remanded to the Department to recalculate the taxes, interest, and 15 penalties based on the remaining covered workers.

16 FINDINGS OF FACT

- 17 1. On February 26, 2018, an industrial appeals judge certified that the 18 parties agreed to include the Jurisdictional History in the Board record 19 solely for jurisdictional purposes.
- 20 2. Vanguard Cleaning Systems is a national trademark brand specializing in 21 commercial janitorial services. Hardy and Associates is a franchisee of 22 Vanguard, however, Hardy does not itself perform any janitorial services.
23 Hardy sublicenses the trademarked Vanguard Cleaning System only to 24 LLCs, not individuals. Under the franchise contract, Hardy is responsible 25 for providing the LLCs with commercial cleaning accounts, however, the 26 LLCs are responsible for performing the janitorial services themselves.
27 The franchise contract with Hardy contains a clause that requires each
28 LLC to hire at least one employee to perform the janitorial work. Hardy 29 does not involve itself with the hiring or firing of employees of the LLC and 30 does not require documentation that the minimum employee requirement
31 has been satisfied. Hardy's revenue consists of the fees and royalties it 32 collects from the commercial customers before forwarding the remaining 33 money to the appropriate LLC.
- 34 3. The LLCs provide janitorial services to various businesses throughout 35 Western Washington. These services include vacuuming, mopping, 36 dusting, cleaning bathrooms, and taking out garbage and recycling. Such 37 services constitute personal labor.

4. The following LLCs hired subordinates during the calendar year of 2015 to perform all or some of the work under the commercial cleaning accounts secured by Hardy: Chris Jones of Chris Cleaning, LLC; Il Chang of Jay's Services, LLC; Violeta Badon of LaSave, LLC;
  5. Hardy failed to provide sufficient records for the Department to calculate the actual hours worked by the covered workers. The Department correctly estimated the hours worked under WAC 296-17- 35201.
  6. With the exception of the workers listed in Finding of Fact No. 4, the Department correctly calculated the unpaid premiums, penalties, and interest due in the Order and Notice Reconsidering Notice and Order of Assessment of Workers' Compensation Taxes No. 0646061.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The Board of Industrial Insurance Appeals has jurisdiction over the parties and subject matter in this appeal.
2. Owners of LLCs who did not hire subordinates to perform all or part of the work under the commercial cleaning contracts are covered workers for whom Hardy is required to pay industrial insurance premiums. RCW 51.08.180; Department of Labor and Indus. v. Lyons Enterprises Inc. 185 Wn.2d 721 (2016); White v. Department of Labor & Indus., 48 Wn.2d 470 (1956).
3. The following LLCs hired subordinates to help perform all or some of their commercial cleaning contracts, making them exempt from coverage under the Industrial Insurance Act: Chris Jones of Chris Cleaning, LLC; Il Chang of Jay's Services, LLC; Violeta Badon of LaSave, LLC;
4. The Department's Order and Notice Reconsidering Notice and Order of Assessment of Workers' Compensation Taxes No. 0646061 is incorrect and is reversed and remanded to the Department to remove the owners of the LLCs identified in Finding of Fact No. 4 and Conclusion of Law No. 3 and recalculate the unpaid premiums, interest, and penalties due.
